Dear Ian,

How have you been? Is everything in your hometown the same as before? Have you enjoyed being back since you left in July? Have you done anything ___42___? I know I raised a lot of questions, but I just miss talking to you. It's not the same without you in the office, but I try not to think about it too much or let it get me down.

You shouldn't worry about me, though, because my life outside of work is going well. I really have ___43___ fun to share with you. I'm taking a German class. ___44___, it's because I want to be able travel by myself when I visit Berlin next February during the Chinese New Year holidays.

I haven't found a place to stay yet. I am wondering ___45___. I'm not looking for anything fancy. I just want somewhere safe and close to your place and maybe with a little kitchen. That way, I could save some money by cooking my own meals. If you can think of any places that are right for me, please let me know.

Can't wait to see you,

Sharon

In the art world, many artists with “weak” bodies have shown us a “strong” power in their great works of art. Take Frida Kahlo for example. She was a healthy girl until she was knocked down by a bus when she at the age of twelve. Much of her body was seriously hurt, but her mind wasn't. In her paintings, we can feel her strong love of art and life.

Christy Brown was born in bad health, and the only part of his body that could move was his left foot. However, using his only foot, he still was able to write and draw wonderfully. In his autobiography, Brown wrote what happened in his life and how he began to draw pictures with his left foot. And don't forget Stevie Wonder. He became blind soon after he was born, but he is now a popular singer and songwriter.

These artists with “weak” bodies bring us many good things and much hope with their “strong” minds. Their stories tell us that the most important thing in life is not what we have, but what we make of it.

A man that makes money from cutting down trees was working in the forest. When he went to hit a big one near a river, he got lost. What's worse, his ax flew out of his hands and into the water. He was feeling sorry for himself when the god Mercury came and asked what was wrong. After the man told him what happened, Mercury dove into the river. He came up with a golden ax, but the man said it wasn't his. He tried again and found a silver one that wasn't the man's, either. Finally, he dove a third time and brought up the ax that the man lost. The man was happy to get it back and kindly thanked him. Mercury was so glad because of his honesty that he gave him the other two axes that he found as gifts.

The man went back to his town and told everybody. One of them was jealous, so he went into the forest and dropped his ax in the river on purpose. As before, Mercury came and dove to get the lost ax. When he brought up a golden one, the man said it was his without having to be asked. That made Mercury angry, so he didn't give the man the ax or help him get back his own.
